

NOTED CHARACTER ANALYST READS HEAD OF FIRST CONGRESSWOMAN

Miss Jeanette Rankin, Congresswoman

BY MRS. MINNA S. PARKS,
Character Analyst.

A head survey of Miss Jeanette Rankin shows that her colleagues may expect tireless work, high devotion to cause, prudence, self control and probably sarcasm and lack of humor from the first woman to enter congress.

Her sharp, acid temperament indicates that she will see flaws everywhere and that she is apt to be decidedly critical.

Strength of character, self reliance, high ambition to excel in intellectual channels and an eagerness for the acquisition and diffusion of knowledge are all clearly indicated in the features.

Temperamentally she is a combi-
